

From: Tom Dupre
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/22/02 7:28am
Subject: antitrust case

I'm amazed at the nerve of Microsoft wanting to offer as a penalty, computers and software to the education market. This is just a ploy to get into the education market and a major disadvantage to other competitors as well. How is this even a penalty against Microsoft.

I hope the judicial system sees this as well and doesn't go along with it. Let the government fine them and give the money to the schools and let the schools decide what computers and software they want to purchase.

Thanks for the time, I just wanted to express my views. I feel MicroSoft is a big bully and overpowers companies who don't do what they want. They have become too big for their own good.

Tom Dupre